Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

This property is significant for the garden which surrounds it. The garden was designed by Edna Walling in the 1930's for the then owners Mr and Mrs Andrew Manifold. Walling's drawing for the gardens are still extant. The garden was constructed by Eric Hammond and features several distinct areas, including a rose garden, semi-circular stone retaining walls and a natural garden. Natural boulders in this area have been chosen to contrast with the dressed stonework in the more formal areas.

The garden is important for aesthetic characteristics created by design technique and demonstrates a high degree of creative and technical achievement. The garden is important for its association with the renowned Australian landscape designer, Edna Walling.
