Statement of Significance

Standard Steel is of local historical and architectural significance as a representative large steel -fabricating works expressing the maturation of Sunshine as a significant industrial and manufacturing centre in the post-war period. Standard Steel was a local pioneer in steel fabrication for many of the new wave of steel-framed building of both factory/warehouse and high-rise commercial functions. The surviving buildings are characteristic of the utilitarian style of the period with simple, International style, and the peculiar form of bow truss curved roofs, with suspended lantern are an unusual type reflecting the innovation of the company.

Physical Description 1

Description

The former Standard Steel factory is a large steel-framed factory complex with curved roofs expressing steel bow trusses. The unusual wing roof profile with joined 'Nissen hut' forms with lantern roof in the centre suggests recycling of buildings - or possibly a one-off engineering solution to particular functional needs (e.g. clear spans) The front office section features a plain International style brick-parapeted facade with steel framed windows.

Physical Conditions

Condition/integrity
