Statement of Significance

Last updated on - August 3, 2004

The hall at 52 High Street, Navarre has significance as a legacy of the development of the community and as a community meeting place from the interwar period (c.1920s - 1940s) period. Although altered and extended, the building has architectural interest for its remnant early features of the interwar era, and appears to be in fair to good condition. The hall at Navarre is architecturally of interest. The remnant early features including the gabled roof forms clad in red painted galvanised corrugated iron, modest eaves, galvanised iron ventilation stacks and the gable infill at the front (timber brackets, ventilator, battening and panelling). All other architectural features visible from the road represent late changes or additions.

The Hall at Navarre is historically and socially of LOCAL significance. It is associated with the development of the Navarre community from the interwar (c1920s - 1940s) period, and is recognised and valued by the community as an important meeting and recreation place.

Overall, the Hall at Navarre is of LOCAL significance.

Physical Description 1

The hall at 52 High Street, Navarre, is set on a contextually large allotment. It is surrounded by open grassed areas at the front and sides, with a round tubular steel and cyclone wire fence forming the front yard. There is also a gateway with granite pillars at the front.

The altered hall building is characterised by early gable roof forms clad in red painted galvanised corrugated iron. Modest overhangs are features of the eaves, while three round galvanised iron ventilation stacks adorn the roofline.

Other remnant early features include those within the gable end at the front: the timber brackets, ventilator, battening and panelling.

The hall building has experienced considerable change, with the timber weatherboards and possibly the windows and doors being altered. The side wall cladding appears to be introduced Hardiplank weatherboards. The shallow pitched wing at the front has been introduced.
