Statement of Significance

Last updated on - April 7, 2021

This place is included on the Victorian Heritage Inventory, for its potential to contain historical archaeological remains associated with the settlement and growth of early Melbourne. Under the terms of the Heritage Act 2017 there is protection for all historical archaeological sites and objects in the state.

Please visit the Heritage Victoria website to find out more about the Heritage Inventory.

Archaeological Significance	Potential for archaeological deposits relating to nineteenth century structures in many contexts (i.e. industrial phase dating through the mid to late nineteenth century). Possible archaeological remains could include structural foundations, artefactual material (i.e. refuse deposits) relating to occupation and industrial use of the site and yard surfaces. Re-use of nineteenth century structures for West's Theatre.
Historical Significance	The site has the ability to inform on the early development of South Melbourne, including early evidence of the Canvas Town. The site has strong potential for late nineteenth century industrial sites and the establishment of Melbourne's first purpose built picture theatre - with a continued theme as a recreational area throughout the twenty-first century.
Other Names	Hoyt's Lyceum, Former Canvas Town, West's Theatre, Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA), Testing Grounds, E. L. Yencken & Co. oil and colour manufacturers,
