Physical Description 1

DESCRIPTION Built of bluestone and timber it is a most unusual use of materials for the date of construction. The rear elevation and the ground floor elevation at the front not only uses bluestone but also quoinwork at the wall angles and door and window enframements. These elements were very popular in Geelong in the 1850s and used only a little for the rest of the nineteenth century. The upper floor of the front elevation reflects the contemporary and popular domestic Bungalow style of architecture with the restrained use of decorative elements and a token gable with vertical strapwork.
