Physical Description 1

This house has been demolished. It was described in the Doncaster & Templestowe Heritage Study (1991) as follows:

'Detached, double-fronted timber house, rectangular in form with corrugated iron roof. The main roof extends to form the verandah roof across the main front. The cladding is vertical boards, in a paling pattern. There are additions at the rear.

Close to the house a small area of citrus trees and a dam remain, indicating its orcharding history.'
