Physical Description 1

A large specimen located north of what appears to be a brick Edwardian-era villa (78), on a vacant grassed area close to the footpath.

The Washingtonia genus is made up of 2 species of fan-leaved palms from arid parts of western Mexico, southern California and Arizona. Their stately appearance makes them ideal specimen or avenue trees. They have an upright, single trunk, and are sometimes called petticoat palms because the dead fronds hang down in a mass around the trunk, almost to the ground. The large leaves have many strap-like segments and spiny leaf stalks. The small white flowers cluster at intervals on long flowering branches that arch out well beyond the leaves. The fruit are small dark drupes {Botanica}.' Washingtonia filifera is from southern California and Arizona. This palm develops a fat trunk and grows 40-50 ft (12-15 m) tall. The greyish green leaves form a broad, spherical crown about 15 ft (4.5 m) across. The common name of cotton palm derives from the white, cotton-like threads on and between the leaf segments. Its small hard black berries ripen in winter {Botanica}.

Physical Conditions

The tree is in good condition.

Integrity

The house and the tree are substantially intact/some intrusions.
