Statement of Significance

Last updated on - October 26, 2004

A single-manual organ of eight stops built by the London organ builder Robert Spurden-Rutt, probably in the 1920's, and installed in its present location in 1967 from St John's, Bairnsdale. Remaining largely intact, it is one of two known organs by this builder in Australia (the other at St Andrew's, Cairns), and is notable for its excellent workmanship and substantial construction.
