Statement of Significance

Last updated on - July 15, 2008

The stained glass of St. Martin de Porres Church: a complete cycle of windows by the Melbourne stained glass artist, John Reginald Ferguson (1923-).

The stained glass of St. Martin de Porres is significant for aesthetic reasons, representing an outstanding example of the mature artistic work of John Reginald Ferguson. The well-conceived design has been interpreted into a comprehensive liturgical cycle through stained glass in the Modernist style and clearly articulated for its intended audience. Its integration with the architectural concept and framework of the building is exceptionally realised.

The stained glass of St. Martin de Porres is socially significant for its strong and special associations with the community of Avondale Heights. The windows respond to the multi-cultural society that comprises the St. Martin de Porres congregation and seek to reinforce the spiritual unity that is supported and encouraged by the Church's mission.

Physical Description 1

At St. Martin de Porres, John Ferguson has designed the figurative windows using traditionally recognised subjects and symbols, but in a Modernist style that responds to and enhances the architecture. The light-filled interior needed careful consideration from both the architect and artist to achieve a successful and integrated effect. As well, the tall narrow openings in the east end demanded shrewd design decisions to accommodate groups of figures, taking into account the restrictions of proportion. The west window provided a particular design challenge as the porch gable protrudes upwards into the window space creating a unique shape requiring judicious placement of figures, texts and symbols.

Subjects of the windows

The subjects of the four stained glass windows in the east end are as follows:

East wall north aisle: The Annunciation of the Virgin 'Behold, the Handmaiden of the Lord'

Sanctuary (left hand light): Pentecost 'Come now Holy Spirit, Fill the Hearts of Your Faithful'

Sanctuary (right hand light): Resurrection 'I am the Resurrection and the Life'

East wall south aisle: Supper at Emmaus 'And their Eyes were Opened...'

These windows represent some of the principal events in the life of Christ, and as such are liturgical significant to the Catholic congregation. The interpretation of the images within a recognisable iconography is deliberately direct and simplified.

The West window encompasses a complex selection of subjects and symbols with Christ as The Good Shepherd in the central panel, surrounded by a hierarchy of significant fathers and saints of the church, including the church's patron saint St. Martin de Porres (1579-1639). St. Martin was a member of the Dominican order, who worked with the poor, the sick and the abandoned in South America. He was proclaimed a saint in 1962 by Pope John XXIII. He is depicted here with a representation of the church that bears his name.

At the apex of the window are the overarching hands of God and the Holy Spirit, and in the lower section the Alpha and Omega are superimposed on the Word of God, above the words 'Teach the Gospel to All Nations'. The window reflects and responds to the multi-cultural population of the district and the parish's mission to assist the poor and sick in the manner of its patronal saint.

Materials and construction

'Stained glass' is defined as glass which has been painted, stained and fired to permanently fix the pigments to the underlying glass. 'Leadlight' is the traditional method of holding different coloured glass pieces together using 'H'-shaped lead comes. Cementing the whole window with linseed oil putty makes a strong, yet flexible, window.

All the stained glass windows at St. Martin de Porres are made from 'Antique' coloured glass, (handmade by the 'cylinder' method, as distinct from modern window glass made by mechanical methods), and put together using traditional leadlight techniques. Each piece of glass is painted and fired with the details of heads, hands and robes, and to modulate the light passing through the window. See photographs in Appendix A.
