Statement of Significance

Last updated on - January 7, 2010

REVISED STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE, CONTEXT, 2010

What is significant?

The c1866 cemetery and the mature planting within the cemetery and the surrounding site to a radius of 30 metres.

How is it significant?

The cemetery is historically, aesthetically and socially significant to the Shire of Nillumbik.

Why is it significant?

The cemetery is historically significant as a rare example (in Melbourne) of a private burial ground established by a district's early settlers - many of the early burials in the cemetery are those of diggers who worked on the nearby Caledonia (St Andrews) goldfields. A study of the graves and associated records tells the story of the difficulties faced by early miners and settlers in the area, and in particular the high child mortality rate (Criterion A). The cemetery is also historically significant as the resting place of several prominent local citizens, including Charlotte Ness and Kathleen Donaldson (Criterion H).

The cemetery is socially and historically significant because it only closed in 1981 and many local residents still have close links to it (Criterion G).

The cemetery is aesthetically significant because it has remained relatively undisturbed for a long period of time and has become an important flora and fauna sanctuary (Criterion E).

BICK STUDY, 1992

The 1860s Queenstown Cemetery has historical significance for its associations with early settlement as the cemetery for the Caledonia Diggings during St. Andrews gold mining era. The rush to these diggings resulted in the establishment of Queenstown (now St. Andrews)

Physical Description 1

The Queenstown Cemetery has some 55 monuments, most of which date from the early 20th century. The disturbed earth elsewhere presumably indicates a (large) number of unmarked graves.
