The former Ledcourt State School, Howards Ledcourt State School Road, Ledcourt, has historical significance for its associations with the development of a school at Ledcourt in 1946. The building has further associations with Warranook West, as it was built in c.1888 as the school there before being relocated to Ledcourt. The school building is of architectural interest, with some original and design qualities including the simple gable roof form, modest scale, single storey height, horizontal timber weatherboard wall cladding and the paired multi-paned timber framed windows at one end.

Physical Description 1

The former Ledcourt State School, off Howards Ledcourt State School Road, Ledcourt, is situated on a rural site surrounded by mature exotic and native trees. The modestly scaled, single storey, horizontal timber weatherboard, Victorian styled school building is characterised by a simple gable roof form. There is a small lean-to at one end which appears to have been introduced, as is the adjacent window hood and the side skillion addition. The paired multi-paned timber framed double hung windows on the gable end appear to be early. There is also an introduced finial at the apex of the gable. Generally, the building appears to have been substantially altered.
