Physical Description 1

The Peace memorial, Halls Gap Road, Stawell is set on a small isolated site in the middle of a large flat grazed paddock. Access to the memorial is through a set of welded pipe and chain mesh gates at the road boundary and via a now grassed hard metalled path. The monument is protected by a welded pipe post and rail fence with a central opening on the approach side. Around this are some senescent cypress trees which are now in poor condition.

The base of the monument comprises three square stepped levels of granite blocks which came from the base of the nearby former treasury building. These are surmounted by a granite obelisk. The granite has been left with a rock face finish with the approach face smoother than the other sides so as to take the name plate which reads:
