Last updated on - June 10, 2024

What is significant?

This property has been reviewed as part of the Stawell Main Street Precinct in 2024, and its heritage category is now Non-contributory.

How is it significant?

The property is Non-contributory to the precinct.

Why is it significant?

Text from the 2004 heritage study:

The building at 97 Main Street, Stawell, is historically and architecturally significant at a CONTRIBUTORY level. Although the 19th century shopfront has been greatly altered, the gable roof form, galvanised corrugated iron roof cladding, and the parapeted face brick side walls of the front section of the building are those particular elements that contribute to the historical and architectural amenity of the area.
