What is significant?

How is it significant?

Why is it significant?

The building at 108 Main Street, Stawell, is historically and architecturally significant at a CONTRIBUTORY level. Although the main facade and shopfront have been greatly altered, the rear two storey hipped roof form clad in galvanised corrugated iron, brick wall construction (rear wall now overpainted), shallow arched window opening, and the brick voussoirs above the window opening are those particular elements that contribute to the historical and architectural amenity of the area.

In 2013 the parapet was reconstructed, a replica verandah added and the shop front and interior refurbished.
