Statement of Significance

Last updated on - August 27, 2004

The former Traynors Lagoon State School No. 1832 has significance for its associations with the development of the Traynors Lagoon State School from 1937 until 1966. The building has further associations with the State School at Swanwater West, having been built there in 1926 before being relocated to Traynors Lagoon in 1937.

The former Traynors Lagoon State School No. 1832 is historically and socially significant at a LOCAL level. Although the school building has been greatly altered, it still has associations with the development of the Traynors Lagoon State School from 1937 until 1966, and with the Swanwater State School from 1926 until 1937. Although now a private residence, the building and site are still recognized by some sections of the local community for its past educational associations. The plaque at the front of the property provides an important understanding of the historical and social values of the place.

Overall, the former Traynors Lagoon State School No. 1832 is of LOCAL significance.

Physical Description 1

The former Traynors Lagoon State School, 671 Traynors Lagoon Road, Traynors Lagoon, is set on a rural site surrounded by eucalypts and other trees and some shrubbery. The school building has been converted into a private residence. A plaque on a circular concrete pedestal with a granite headstone provides some historical recognition of the previous school.

The single storey, horizontal timber weatherboard, former School building is characterised by an early gable roof form that traverses the site, together with introduced skillion wings at the sides. These roof forms are clad in introduced corrugated Colorbond. An introduced brick chimney adorns the roofline.

Another surviving early feature of the design is the bank of timber framed multi-paned windows in the gable end. All other windows and doors have been introduced.
