Physical Description 1

St George's Anglican Church, Balliang is an Early English Gothic timber church, with thre e bays to the nave and liturgically correct orientation.

There is a 10-pane lancet window and a gablet roofvent to each bay. The east end has an incised semi-circular half round decoration over a jerkin-head roofed narthex and porches each side, with balustrades . Vestries form transepts, with a leadlight window in the chancel, north side .Rafters are exposed. Inside, two steps rise at the chancel which has a pseudo-four centred arch. Timber pews have cast-iron frames. The roof trusses are exposed, with a semi-circular pattern similar to the gable-ends.
