Physical Description 1

Building commenced in 1862 to the design of C.D.Cuthbert. The foundation stone was laid on 1 December 1862, and the church was opened On 15 August 1864. The spire was added in 1884, C.D. Figgis the architect and the transepts, construe in 1889, were designed by Figgis and Molloy. In 1888 ,Tappin, Gilbert and. Dennehy designed the Manse.

The main section of the church is of Norman design of some considerable importance. The tower is mainly a Gothic design, other than at its base. Internally the 1862 section comprise~ a Norman nave aisle which is rather broad in relation to the nave width. The St.Andrews complex is perhaps the major eclesciastic landmark of Ballarat, as well as being among the most important architecturally on account of the Norman design. The tower, although of a -different style, is quite elegant, and the whole design harmonious. The original Norman section is the principal architectural interest and is state wide importance.

This building is one of the principal buildings in an important environmental area.
