Interpretation of Site	The Melton Valley Golf Course is on the site of Melton's first township. Evidence relating to the use of the site remains and mainly includes plantings. Two graves from the Pyke family, the first settlers in Melton are located on site.
Archaeological Significance	The Melton Valley Golf Course/ Melton township site maintains many features including plantings, road/path alignments, underground tanks and graves associated with the first settlement of the area. The ground is highly disturbed and has been significantly modified for use as a golf course. The township site has low integrity and intactness. There is some potential for subsurface deposits to remain.
Historical Significance	Melton Valley Golf Course is of local historical significance for its association with the first settlement of the township and retains evidence associated with the development of civic life in Melton. The site has important historical connections to the Pyke family, the first settlers in the Melton region.
