What is Significant?

/n

The Haddon Memorial Reserve is situated at the intersection of Haddon Windemere Road, the Sago Hill Road, and Memorial Drive.

/n/n

It was established by the Haddon community in 2000 and replaces an earlier Avenue of Honour planted in 1919, comprising two converging rows of Cupressus macrocarpa (Montray Cyprus) planted along Haddon Windemere Road and Sago Hill Road. The reserve is a large triangular grass verge, comprising internal plantings of mixed native shrub beds, Betula pendula (Silver birch) and perimeter plantings comprise Quercus palustris (Pin oak), mixed Fraxinus (Ash) species. Two Lone Pine specimens, derived from the Pinus halepensis (Aleppo Pine) Lone Pine at Gallipoli, are also planted in the reserve. These plantings draw on a strong tradition of planting Lone Pine progeny within commemorative landscapes throughout Victoria and New South Wales, to honor soldiers who fought in Gallipoli during World War 1 and in particular, as a memorial to the battle of the Lone Pine which took place on 6 August 1915. The war memorial is composed of a large basalt bolder, which features a commemorative plaque dedicated to 'all persons from Haddon and district who served their country in time of conflict'. The bolder and three flag poles are set within a circular paved plinth. Two timber seats are located adjacent.

How is it Significant?

/n

The Haddon Memorial Reserve is of historic and social significance to the Haddon community and the Golden Plains Shire.

/n/n

Why is it Significant?

/n

The Haddon Memorial Reserve is of historic significance for demonstrating the commitment of the Haddon community in commemorating, at a local level, some of the most important events in the national history of Australia. The war memorial is especially significant as a tribute to the roles of those from the local community who served during times of conflict.

/n/n

It is of social significance as the focus of acts of commemoration such as Anzac Day and Remembrance Day, and as a place of homage for the community.

Veterans Description for Public

The Haddon Memorial Reserve is situated at the intersection of Haddon Windemere Road, the Sago Hill Road, and Memorial Drive. In 2000, the Haddon community established the Reserve to replace the Avenue of Honour planted in 1919 and destroyed in the late 1990s due to severe winds. The reserve comprises of internal and perimeter plantings, flagpoles and a large basalt bolder featuring a commemorative plaque dedicated to "all persons from Haddon and district who served their country in time of conflict."

The reserve is a large triangular grass verge, comprising internal plantings of mixed native shrub beds, Betula pendula (Silver birch) and perimeter plantings comprise Quercus palustris (Pin oak), mixed Fraxinus (Ash) species. Two Lone Pine specimens, derived from the Pinus halepensis (Aleppo Pine) Lone Pine at Gallipoli, are also planted in the reserve. These plantings draw on a strong tradition of planting Lone Pines within commemorative landscapes throughout Victoria and New South Wales to honour soldiers who fought in Gallipoli during the First World War and in particular, as a memorial to the battle of the Lone Pine which took place on 6 August 1915.
