Physical Description 1

Newstead and District Soldiers' Memorial is in an area reserved for a public park on the Creswick Newstead Road, Newstead opposite the railway station. The almost triangular park reserve is on all sides with single or double rows of exotic deciduous trees.

The monument, erected by Wilson and Co, of Bendigo, is carved from Harcourt granite and is in good condition. It comprises an obelisk and base (2.5m) resting on a pedestal and stepped base of three courses, the whole measuring 4.7 m in height, within an enclosure, 3.5 m square, bounded by six granite posts connected by two layers of steel pipe and cyclone wire. There is a framed cyclone wire gate on one side of this enclosing fence. The dedicatory inscription on the memorial faces the railway station, and the three remaining panels are inscribed with the names of 41 men from the pre-1915 Shire of Newstead who died in the First World War and three who died in the second.

Directly adjacent to the monument there is a flagpole, which has a rough-faced base of Harcourt granite. The flagpole and its base are located within a small square enclosure bounded by four granite posts, linked with two rows of steel pipe.

A rectangular border around the grouping of the memorial and flagpole is marked by blocks of granite set into the ground, from which they sit slightly proud. This grouping is further surrounded by five palm trees. The placement of the existing trees and two depressions in the ground at particular intervals within the circle suggests that there were originally seven trees.

Veterans Description for Public

The Newstead War Memorial, located on Creswick Newstead Road, commemorates the First World War and the Second World War. It was generally agreed in the winter of 1919 that Newstead's 180 volunteers in the First World War should be commemorated by an Avenue of Honour followed by the erection of an obelisk, in the reserve opposite the railway station, which was then a vacant allotment. When the Avenue of Honour proposal grew controversial, due to the favoured site on the Strangways Road being on the Loddon River's flood plain, several Shire Councillors preferred an obelisk because, as Cr Gibson said; 'the obelisk would remain a lasting memorial, whereas the trees would die out.'

On October 17th 1919, a month after the opening of the avenue on the Joyce's Creek Road, a public meeting, in the Mechanics' Institute decided unanimously to erect a memorial 'in honour of the fallen soldiers of the old Newstead Shire.' Evidently there were delays because two years elapsed before the monument was completed at a cost of £400. At the same time three local men, J. Cusack, J.T. Height and D. Smith, built a 'substantial fence' around the reserve using materials supplied by T. Odgers and Co., of Castlemaine. The memorial committee's intention was to have the enclosed area planted with shrubs to form a small park or garden.

The monument was unveiled on November 12th 1921 by Brigadier General Sir Thomas Glasgow (1876-1955), a Queensland Senator (1919-32), who had commanded the 1st Division, AIF, in France in 1918 and was Commonwealth Minister for Defence between 1927 and 1929. Other members of the official party were Captain Morley, MLA, D. McLeod, MLA, Shire President Cr B. Blinkhorn, the memorial committee of nine members, including the chairman, Cr Alex Clarke, shire councillors and other prominent residents. Sir Glasgow requested all present to bow their heads while he performed the unveiling, the silence broken only by buglers of the Newstead State School who played 'The Last Post'.

After the Second World War, the names of those who served were engraved onto the back of the monument along with the dates 1939-1945.
