Veterans Description for Public

The Carlton Drill Hall, on Grattan Street, resembled a late Colonial timber drill hall. From the period 1884-1901 militia orderly rooms were built by the Victorian Public Works Department and were universally of timber and of similar design. The seminal examples of this era are Ballarat, Bendigo, Castlemaine, Portland and St Kilda which are all to the design of the PWD architect Samuel Bindley. The Carlton Hall has since been demolished. Of the twenty-eight examples of this type built in Victoria, only eight remain.
