Veterans Description for Public

The former South Melbourne Drill Hall located on Howe Crescent dated from the period 1884-1901 militia orderly rooms were built by the Victorian Public Works Department and were universally of timber and of similar design.

The seminal examples of this era are Ballarat, Bendigo, Castlemaine, Portland and St Kilda which are all to the design of the PWD architect Samuel Bindley. Of the 28 examples of this type built, only eight remain.
