Statement of Significance

Last updated on - January 1, 2002

Most rural towns, however small, have a war memorial commemorating those who fought and died in 20th century wars. These memorials serve as poignant reminders of the immense sacrifice made by vast numbers of Australians and remain important symbols within the local community. Local significance [Criterion A & G]

Physical Description 1

A rendered and white painted obelisk, mounted on a stepped concrete base. The whole is encircled by a band of white and behind the obelisk is a flagpole. A black marble plaque with gold lettering reads 'Lest We Forget' and there is a brass laurel wreath as well. Later brass plaques commemorate the Boer War, World War I, World War II; and in Korea, Malaya, Borneo and Vietnam; and there is a 50 year 'Australia Remembers 1945-1995' plaque. The memorial is located within a small corner park and there are mature trees to the rear of the park.

Veterans Description for Public

The Tangambalanga War Memorial is a rendered and white painted obelisk, mounted on a stepped concrete base, located within a small corner park on Kiewa East Road. The monument is encircled by a band of white and behind the obelisk is a flagpole. A black marble plaque with gold lettering reads 'Lest We Forget' and there is a brass laurel wreath as well. Also affixed are brass plaques commemorating the Boer War, First World War, Second World War, Korea, Malaya, Borneo, Vietnam and an 'Australia Remembers 1945-1995' plaque. Only unveiled on 30 March 1969, it is a relatively recent war memorial.
