Physical Description 1

Small memorial park featuring an obelisk-style granite memorial, flagpole and assorted picnic facilities. [LCC] The publication, War Memorials in Victoria (1994), describes it as a 'cement cairn'. [RSL, 1994, p. 204]

COMPARATIVE ANALYSIS

The Winslow war memorial is one of an important group of local war memorials erected in Moyne Shire in the aftermath of World War I. It is a typical design - that of a simple stone obelisk set upon a plain stone plinth. It is similar to the memorials at Ellerslie, Hexham, Macarthur and Koroit (although the latter has been somewhat altered). Like many other war memorials in the Shire, it has been erected in a small reserve dedicated to that purpose, which is also the case at Ellerslie, Woolsthope, Chatsworth and other towns.
