History

Eliza Archer was wed in 1845 to a retired sea Captain, John Archer. On retiring from a life at sea he had accepted the job as manager of Lucknow Station. Archer brought his young wife to Lucknow Station, but soon after arrival, she died in childbirth. Mrs Archer was buried on the station. Another grave near Eliza's is believed to be that of a cook on the station. The monument is not on the original burial position, several house blocks to the west, and has been moved down the street as houses have been built. The monument is now on the footpath opposite 43 Crooke St.
