History

The Point View Hotel was an accommodation and refreshment house about 10km out of Seaton, and between about 1863 and 1865 was managed by William Dudman. In about 1866, John Taylor and family came to reside at the hotel, described as a rough 6-roomed dwelling with horse stables nearby. The grave holds Mrs Taylor and on or two of her children. A tree on which Mrs Taylor's name was inscribed was destroyed by fire at some stage, erasing all trace of the christian names. The causes of death are not known, and the deaths were not officially recorded.
