Statement of Significance

Last updated on - May 12, 2006

Site of local historical significance, moderate scientific significance. Most likely to be associated with mid-late nineteenth century farming, post gold-rush

Interpretation of Site

A building is shown in approximately this location on an 1859 plan of the Maldon goldfields, which includes the study area. The small size of the building suggests that it is an outbuilding, which may have been associated with a larger timber building, no longer extant.
