Statement of Significance

Last updated on - November 14, 2006

The site is significant as a major part of Bendigo's manufacturing industry which grew in response to the gold rush. The brick chimney is a rare surviving factory chimney. It is architecturally notable for its specialised construction.

Interpretation of Site	Chimney, concrete block and brick wall are all remains of the former Sandhurst Rolling Stock Works dating to the late 19th-century. Other archaeological elements of the site may still remain, such a base for boiler and brick dividing wall.
