Significance of Individual Property

One of several Interwar Period houses, which represent the third major period of development in the precinct. The Tudor Revival style house, designed by the noted architect, Arthur Plaisted, is a substantially intact representation of the architectural style.

HO264 Balwyn Road Residential Precinct, Canterbury

Reference - Balwyn Road Residential Precinct, Canterbury: Stage 2 Heritage Precinct Review (August 2006)

The Balwyn Road Residential Precinct is of historic significance because the pattern of development reflects that of Boroondara generally. In much of Boroondara one or two periods might be represented in any one precinct, however in the Balwyn Road Residential Precinct all periods are nearly equally represented. As such, the precinct is a microcosm of the broad sweep of development across the City. The relative consistency in the allotment width and/or size across the different phases of development serves to unify the precinct.

There are historical associations with several eminent families (Danks, Goldings, Marfleets, McAlpins, etc). Of further interest is the profile that some residents have had at a broader level (either State, national or international) and the manifold connections between various residents within the precinct and the City of Boroondara.

The Balwyn Road Residential Precinct is of aesthetic significance for the many high quality buildings, some of which are of individual significance at the broader level, and others that are generally good examples of their architectural style. The buildings are remarkably intact to their period of construction and have been well maintained. There has been limited change of building stock. A high proportion of the buildings have been architect designed. Although there are a range of styles evident, there is a consistency in scale and setbacks.

The extensive and well maintained landscaping both to the street (with trees and wide reservations) and the private gardens provides a level of cohesion. One of the gardens (no. 17) is a rare example of a late nineteenth century intact suburban garden. In addition, some of the early road and paving infrastructure is intact.

Physical Description 1

The site is one of the largest in the precinct and the substantial single storey, L-shaped Tudor Revival style building is set in a well-maintained garden with broad areas of lawn and exotic plantings. The front boundary is defined by a low hedge.

The large gabled roof is clad in variegated tiles. The arched entry porch is at the junction of the two wings, some distance from the street. The masonry walls have a clinker brick base with smooth rendered masonry above. There are vertical slit vents to the gable ends. There are bay windows of varying sizes to the front of the house.
