Interpretation of Site	Roadside grave within grassy road verge, at base of road alignment batter. A white wooden cross bearing the inscription "George Watmore Speared By Blacks" on the timber and "Renewed 1-12-1998 by R. Scott Portland" on a metal alloy plaque underneath, marks the grave site. An approximately 2 x 2 m area in front of the marker is slightly mounded and partially bordered by bluestone fragments, which are mostly overgrown with grass.
Archaeological Significance	The site is likely to contain the human remains of an early European settler and their examination may reveal much about the diet, health, lifestyle and possibly manner of death of the individual.
Historical Significance	The site represents the often violent contact between Aboriginals and Europeans in the early years of settlement.
