Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

An Italianate brick cottage built in c1895. It is historically significant locally as a representative embodiment of family life in late nineteenth century Ringwood. It is architecturally significant as a rare example of an inner urban cottage type in a rural settlement location. Its significance is increased by its situation within a small group of the period, and particularly its proximity to no. 24 Wantirna Road (HO70) which is similar.

Physical Description 1

A single-fronted Italianate brick house with a hipped roof. Brickwork is Flemish bond and tuckpointed. There is a plain red brick chimney, corbelled at top over a frieze course. The eaves have ogree turned frieze timber brackets. There is a hipped timber verandah, a timber addition at rear and three reinforcing rods.

Intactness

Brickwork is painted over. The verandah floor has been replaced with a concrete slab. The Cyclone chain-link fence is not old, but appropriate.
