Physical Description 1

Four small row houses, constructed in red brick with slate roof prominently displayed facing the street. The main roof changes pitch to form an entry porch. At the ridge terracotta ridging adds to the intricate skyline feature created by the castellated parapets between each dwelling. At the termination of the parapet on every second house, is a prominent Queen Anne chimney stack. A simple composite casement window forms the principal opening and a front door with multi paned square lights completes the composition.
