Physical Description 1

Although opened in 1961, the park-like landscape development is notable and still developing, with mature exotic and native trees, custom designed memorials, lilly pilly hedges and the former Eastern Market wrought iron gates relocated to the entrance within a 1960s masonry gateway. The buildings are contributory to the period of development although unremarkable architecturally.

There are tree groupings and hedges in a variety of geometric forms, circular, polygonal, with pathways following curves or geometrical shapes and centred fountains. The courts formed by planting and pavement include the Courts of Memories, Tranquility, Hours, Gospel. There are the Chapel Gardens, associated rose beds, Chapel of Repose, Chapel of Peace, and Crematorium, an Armillary Sun Dial Garden, and the offices. There are also a number of thematic lawns such as the Willow and Eucalyptus lawns.
