STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

St David's Uniting Church is an interesting Edwardian church of 1914, regionally significant for its English Arts and Crafts influenced details over the generally Decorated Gothic design including the fine hammer-beam roof. This building has a regional historical significance as an example of a new Presbyterian church established in 1914 in response to the development of Newtown as a suburb of Geelong, providing specialized functions for the Geelong district. Its social significance has meaning for generations of Newtown Presbyterians.
