Physical Description 1

"1606 High Street was constructed as a butcher's shop c. 1932. The ground floor of this two-storey building has been remodelled to provide large areas of glazing and glass brick features. However, the red brick facade at first floor level and the unusual arrangement at the eaves has remained intact. The building's oversized parapet is broken in the centre, allowing a Marseilles tiled roof to spill through the gap to form an awning, supported on timber brackets, above the first floor windows. The facade is also noteworthy for the finely executed detailing of its first floor windows."
