Physical Description 1

A double-fronted symmetrical timber Italianate cottage. It has a gabled roof across, with a skillion at rear and a convex roofed verandah. This has a fine scalloped fretwork frieze and fretwork ends, which could be Edwardian. There are pressed metal triangular panels and Regency stallboards.

The door is panelled with a fanlight. It has an eave frieze with turned spindle ogee bracket pairs with lozenges and panels between over a mould. The tour-de-force is the spectacular roof cladding of slates with two rows of scalloped green slates and a central diamond of diamond - shaped green slates around a central grey diamond.
