Physical Description 1

The single storey timber house is clad in weatherboards and the concave verandah and hipped roof are clad in corrugated iron. There is a central front door and a double-hung window on either side. There is a polychrome brick chimney towards the west side of the house and surmounting the chimney is a delightful clay chimney pot. The overall style of the building is conservative for its date of construction as is the decorative cast iron lace valance on the verandah.
