STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The prefabricated iron house, 'Corio Villa', was manufactured in Edinborough in 1855 by iron founder, Charles D Young and Co. from designs by Bell and miller, architects and engineers. William Nairn Gray, colonial land commissioner, ordered this villa but he died on the 11th June, 1854 prior to arrival of the portable house shipment.

Alfred Douglas, merchant, acquired and erected the villa in 1856. "Corio Villa' is of a paramount international significance to the history of industrial technology and aesthetic movement in the 19th c in Great Britain.
