History/Notes

The land at 63 Upper Skene Street formed part of Henry King's landholdings. This property was subdivided as the Newtown Tram Estate in 1912 and lots 9 & 10 were sold to Abram Dower, an engine driver of Elderslie Terrace, Herne Hill. Dower had this house built on lot 10 in 1913-14. He lived there with his wife, May Elizabeth (nee Ramsay) Dower until his death in 1936.

Abram Dower was born in c.1867, the son of Joseph James and Mary Ann (nee Cushion) Dower. With May, he raised four children: Jack, Violet, Alice and Clifford. On his death, in 1936, Dower's property in Upper Skene Street was described as 'a 6-roomed W.B. house and outbuildings' valued at £660. The property passed to Abram Dower's son, Clifford.

The asymmetrical, single storey, timber Edwardian dwelling is predominantly intact when viewed from the street. The original features include the principal hipped roof form, together with the minor projecting gabled wing and the convex post-supported front verandah having a timber fretwork valance. Other original features include the brick chimneys, timber framed double hung windows, modest eaves and gable infill.
