STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Historically, a public meeting place which symbolizes in it's creation the great influence held by the church in the 19th century (i.e. reserve acquisition, above the existing generous grants)' also one of the first barracks to be occupied by the Salvation Army in Victoria and for a long [period part of the Wesleyan Church complex which had commenced in the 1850's. Although potentially of significance, the building's external expression of these things is now severely limited.

Architecturally, an extensively altered design in the Greek/Roman (pagan) temple form, of which the most decorated and impressive element (the gabled pediment) still survives

DESCRIPTION

Mainly seen today as a finely detailed classical gable (with oculus vent), projecting over 1960s offices, the former hall can also be seen from the rear as an unplastered gabled brick (painted) hall fronting a car park. The former Barrabool Shire Office additional extends down the south side as well as the west, so effectively enclosing at least two elevations. The former main entrance is visible within the new office as a steel fire door in a smooth plastered wall. The hall interior may be more complete (not inspected).

External Integrity

Presumably three elevations are now obscured and altered in some ways, the remaining elevation's brickwork has been painted.

Streetscape

Formerly part of an elegant 19th century complex, the hall and the residence (demolished) site have been severely compromised by unrelated later development, as has the worth of the complex as a whole. Nevertheless, with the retention of part of this building, the complex can still be understood and is not enjoyed.

This place/object may be included in the Victorian Heritage Register pursuant to the Heritage Act 2017. Check the Victorian Heritage Database, selecting 'Heritage Victoria' as the place source.
