Statement of Significance

Last updated on - October 1, 2021

The ruined house is representative of the early selecting families in the district from the 1860s onwards, working the land and developing primary industry.

Interpretation of Site

The site comprises a chimney base, exotic trees, scatter of handmade bricks, fragmented historic artefacts (eg, ceramics) and dilapidated cart. The chimney likely represents the remains of a ruined house. The materials used to construct the chimney comprise local sub-rectangular natural stone blocks and handmade brick. The date of construction is not known. However, the Parish of Watta Wella map indicates that the land was selected by a R Chaming sometime from 1866 onwards, and the ruined house may date to this early selection period. Other components of the site include exotic trees, a scatter of handmade bricks and fragmented historic artefacts (eg, ceramics), and a dilapidated cart.
