STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

St James Church of England at Drysdale was erected in 1872 using local brick maker Widdiscombes' red and cream brick in an Early English Gothic design by Geelong architect Andrew McWilliams.

Bishop Perry opened the church on 22nd July 1872. The simple lancet windows, modest dichromatic brickwork, central tower and finely executed interior are the principal features of this typical country parish church of the 19th century. The use of T. H. Widdicombe's purpose made white bricks and tiles was an innovative feature at the time of construction in 1872.
