A Listed - State Significance

St Albans homestead at Whittington, a single storey 10 room brick mansion was erected in 1873 for noted race horse breeder and trainer James Wilson. Melbourne architect James T. Conlon designed the extensive homestead in the fashionable polychromatic mode with an elaborate cast iron verandah by Geelong foundrymen Humble and Co.

'St Albans' is a most distinctive work of J.T. Conlon and of significance as one of the leading horse racing studs in Australia in the later 19th century. Many Melbourne Cup runners were trained on the 'St. Albans' track. The derelict gatehouse is also of interest.
