STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Geelong Gaol, a brick and bluestone construction, erected in 1849 and 1864 is the oldest, continuously inhabited penal building in Victoria and an outstanding work of Colonial Clerk of Works, Henry Ginn. The complex is most notable for the precise and traditional plan layout finely detailed and crafted masonry cell blocks and Italianate style entrance gates and governor's house. The buildings are representative of the style of institutional architecture of the Victorian colony prior to , and after separation in 1851.

The penal complex was erected by a variety of contractors assisted by prison labour.
