Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

C Listed - Local Significance

A good large Edwardian timber house built in 1925-6. It has local architectural significance as representative of this style, and with interesting Art Nouveau influenced organic fretwork details. It is historically significant as a representative embodiment of comfortable Edwardian family life in Newtown and its values.

INTACTNESS: Very Good

CONDITIONS AND THREATS: Good. The verandah floor urgently needs repair. The roofing slate may need maintenance

REFERENCE:

City of Newtown and Chilwell Ratebooks - Note: the discrepancy of an Edwardian house being built in 1925-6 has not been resolved.

DESCRIPTION

In front of the oulus leadlight, with plant form decoration and a rectangular bay window on the splay, at the angle, under the verandah. This is supported on post-pairs on brick bases, with beveled, rendered -?. There is timber outbuildings (perhaps a former laundry). At rear is a glazed, latticed verandah with a catenary curved transom. The Edwardian door, probably, has leadlight and a fly screen door, also probably original fly screen door.
