REFERENCES

'Plan of the Flinders Estate, Barwon Heads' in 1887, does not indicate a jetty, yet the 'Barwon Heads Estate' plan of 30th March, 1892, has a jetty clearly marked and located in the position of the present jetties. These plans are in the collection of the Geelong Historical Records Centre. Yet the Barwon Heads Park Trust Minute Books, 1889-1918 record that the newly-appointed Trust offered to 'take charge of the shelter shed and jetty'.

DESCRIPTION

The Barwon Heads jetties and the remaining, former Fishermens' Co-operative Shed on the banks of the Barwon River are comprised of two jetties constructed of timber. The southern-most jetty has a large T plan, while the northern jetty is shorter and terminates in an L form. The former Fishermen's Co-operative Shed is a single storey horizontal weatherboard structure with a gabled corrugate asbestos sheet roof. The small Boot Room structure is situated nearby (see separate Record Sheet).

The jetties and shed makes a significant contribution to the visual amenity of the Barwon River bank at Barwon Heads.

This place/object may be included in the Victorian Heritage Register pursuant to the Heritage Act 2017. Check the Victorian Heritage Database, selecting 'Heritage Victoria' as the place source.
