Physical Description 1

The cottage on this property has been demolished. It was described in the Doncaster & Templestowe Heritage Study (1991) as follows:

'A double-fronted, symmetrical, timber house, with a steeply-pitched hipped-roof. A concave verandah extends across the front face. There are remnants of a timber valance, with cast-iron brackets affixed to the timber verandah posts. There are large Elm trees at rear. The house is in a generally neglected condition.'
