Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

Of local significance as an early timber hotel, in form and materials retaining much of the characteristics of an 1870s country hotel, and one of only a few examples remaining within the metropolitan area; its significance is reduced to local by the extent of the changes to the building.

Physical Description 1

The Templestowe Hotel (former Sheahan's Hotel) is a symmetrical timber, corrugated iron gable roofed hotel with a skillion verandah set between two projecting gables. The gables have simple timber decoration (bargeboards, finials and pendants with a crossbar). The hotel was presumably built in sections and has been greatly altered and has later large multi-light sash windows with small shutters. It is said that part of the original building was preserved when the hotel was remodelled and extended in 1964.
