Physical Description 1

This building has been demolished. It was described in the Doncaster & Templestowe Heritage Study (1991) as follows:

'A timber house, said to date from pre-1917, has been substantially altered. Its current appearance suggests that the house was altered in the late 1940s or 1950s, converted the roof-line from a pitched to a flat roof and replacing the windows. A centrally placed window, to the left of the front door, is said to have served as the shop window. A skillion section added to the left hand side of the main section of the house is also said to have been associated with its use as an ice-cream shop.[2]'
