Physical Description 1

DESCRIPTION

An eleven-bay, Edwardian, hip-roofed, timber pavilion with distinctive Art Nouveau decoration. The central and end gables facing north, project over the verandah. Between these, the roof sweeps down with broken pitch over the veranda. This is supported on the timber posts, arrayed in clusters of three for the central pavilion, with sinuous curved brackets. The gables have timber shingle cladding and turned timber finials with a valence of rails and gloriously sinuous curved Art Nouveau timber tracery.
